Technical training on

Coal and Petcoke for the Cement Industry in the Arab Region

Technical Considerations and Safety Aspects

March 13-14, 2016, Cairo, Egypt

sponsored by

About the workshop

The production of Portland cement requires a high degree of thermal energy. The cement industry in the Arab world faced problems of declining the supply of the traditional heavy oil with a tremendous increase in price.

The technical support and international experience are crucial for the cement industry in the Arab region, as various cement companies started the use of coal and petcoke as part of the fuel/energy mix.

The present workshop offers an opportunity to discuss vital aspects concerning coal utilization and associated safety measures in the cement manufacture process with the latest European experience. It is addressed to the responsible and technical staff of the cement industry in the Arab region.
